Automated Software Testing

Company Overview

Odin Technology are industry experts in the design, development and implementation of automated software testing solutions with many years experience in this field. We have a unique blend of software testing and development skills, positioning us as a technology company dedicated to the provision of solutions to testing problems. Our clients include leading software development corporations, systems integrators, consultancies and major financial institutions.

Services

Odin Technology provide the following automated software testing services:

- Design and implementation of automated testing systems
- Automation feasibility and test tools evaluation
- Automation best practice consultancy
- Test tool customisation and bespoke test harness development.
- The Axe automated testing framework
- .NET test automation services
- WebServices and component automation
- Training and support

Products

Our flagship product, Axe, leads a new generation of frameworks for automated software testing. Combining existing tools, a proven testing methodology and Odin Technology's software, it provides a totally table driven interface to automated testing negating the need for traditional scripting techniques. Axe provides a means to rapidly deploy automated testing systems that can be used by non-technical staff with the minimum of training.
